Woman Arrested, Bucket List Now Shorter

By Jean Perry

A woman was “arrested” on Thursday, March 30, by two obliging officers who, in the spirit of public service, community journalism, and public awareness, pulled her over on the side of a quiet country road in Rochester, cuffed her, and hauled her butt into the station after a short ride in the backseat of a cruiser.

According to the police report written by Officer Sean Crook, “...At approximately 1200 hours, I assisted Officer [Robert] Nordahl on a motor vehicle stop in the area of 38 Deerfield Terrace.... Officer Nordahl subsequently arrested the operator, Jean Perry ... for operating a motor vehicle with a suspended license. Officer Nordahl placed Perry into handcuffs and transported her back to the Rochester Police Department for processing. I followed Officer Nordahl ... and conducted the booking process. Perry was checked by matron Knight and subsequently placed into Cell 1, pending transport to Wareham District Court.”

By now, the reader has likely noticed that the “arrestee” is also the author, who will now attempt the smoothest transition possible from third-person narrative to first-person.

This statement is now false: I've never been arrested. The following statement is 100 percent true: I have experienced the mortification of being handcuffed by police on the side of the road and witnessed by the probing eyes of a passing UPS driver. Also true, I have felt the wrist-skin-pinching steel of handcuffs being crushed by my own back against the hard plastic seats of a police cruiser – and I did it all for you.

Ever scrolled through your Facebook feed to see a friend's ‘cut and paste’ post about checking off a bucket list of life experiences? Things like, have you ever climbed a mountain, seen someone give birth, seen someone die, saved someone's life, lived in a hut in the jungle, participated in a Cuban voodoo ceremony, ridden through the Andes mountains in the back of an open air truck like a farm animal.... Reading through the various lists, I could see myself saying yes to almost everything on them, or possibly saying yes to a couple in the near future. But the one, 'have you ever been arrested' was one I couldn't say yes to, and likely never would, and on some irrational level, it bothered me.

The average person must watch at least one arrest on TV every day – whether fictional or on the news – but what does it feel like to be arrested? What's it like to be powerless and under the control of a law enforcement officer, taken away from your vehicle and brought to the police station? What happens next? What's going on outside while I'm inside a holding cell? How long is this going to take? I really wanted to find all that out.

On Thursday, March 23, I met with Rochester Police Chief Paul Magee at the station. Sure, my request was a strange one, but the chief reassured me that it wasn't crazy at all. In fact, he liked the idea of staging a mock arrest to describe to readers the process and what it's like to people who have never experienced it.

I signed a waiver. We scheduled a date and time. Thursday, March 30, at noon. I was to drive down Mary's Pond Road and take a left onto Deerfield Terrace and somewhere along the route a cruiser would be waiting to pull me over. It was a legit scenario. And when I passed that cop car and he turned out behind me, followed me turning left onto Deerfield and flashed his lights, adrenalin was pulsing through my veins.

Officer Nordahl approached my window, followed by Officer Crook who arrived right behind him. I was nervous, and so was my photographer Colin (who has also never been arrested). We played out the fictional arrest like actors on a slightly awkward stage.

With the pretend 'suspended license' return on my name, Officer Nordahl asked me to step out of the vehicle, put my hands behind my back, and thus began the adventure of getting arrested.

It was a calm, cooperative arrest. No resistance from me. The officers were professional and as courteous as possible, which, I presume, is how most people would want their first arrest experience to be like. After a quick general pat-down, the officer assisted me into the backseat of the cruiser, extended the obligatory hand-guiding of the head so as not to bump it, and we drove towards Dexter Lane, into the 'authorized vehicles only' entrance at the station and then slowly into sally port A to be securely unloaded and ushered into the booking room.

The sally port was like a cave. It was instantly nighttime beneath synthetic streetlamp lighting, almost. I had a sense that for a police officer, given a different, perhaps more threatening offender to unload, it could be a few tense moments to pass through.

The booking room is a bright, basic, white cement block room with a fingerprinting machine, a wooden bench, and a cubicle behind which the booking officer stands at a computer to enter the offender's information.

My left hand is shackled to the bench and the officer stands before me, reading me the Miranda Warning slowly and calmly. I sign my name acknowledging my understanding of my rights and then I answer a series of questions that Crook emphasizes are not "joke questions."

Have you consumed any alcohol today? Do you feel hopeless? Do you want to harm yourself? Are you suicidal? No, no, no, and no. There were other questions, (of course, with a shackled wrist and no pen and pad to note them all down), but this gave the officer an idea as to whether or not I might try to hurt myself in the cell. I surrendered my belongings, my jewelry (except for my nose ring, which would have had to come out were I truly being arrested, but not worth the pain for a fictitious arrest), and my boots.

Fingerprinting was tedious, awkward, and required my full cooperation. I was amazed at how something so mundane as a series of fingerprints at a police station could appear as an intricate, delicate artwork, black swirls and white sways inside squares. As Nordahl controlled the movement of my fingers, I learned to bend and twist along with him, getting better at it with each following fingerprint.

And of course, there were the arrest photos. Like the other shots Colin took of me, it was hard keeping a serious, stoic face throughout. But I think I managed to look rather displeased and with a little "attitude" as Crook described my facial expression.

Matron on duty Patricia Knight came in to give me a more thorough, matter-of-fact pat down and body search. She found nothing, of course, and I was led into the holding cell for about 15 minutes of captive contemplation.

Cold, hard, but pretty darn clean (smelling of cleaning solution), the holding cell was about 4 by 8 feet, containing only a solid wooden bed (no mattress) attached to the floor, and a stainless steel toilet with a small airplane bathroom-type stainless steel sink mounted behind it. With cameras aimed from more than one angle, I didn't use the toilet. I sat, alone, with a gray, recycled, wool army-style blanket as my only comfort, aside from the reassurance that I would be released in only a short while, my arrest record wiped from the record, and my belongings returned to me.

"How'd it go? Did the prisoner give you any trouble?" the chief asked, poking his head in after I was released from the cell. I was a model detainee, one of the officers told him. And, of course, I returned the compliment, saying I was impressed with the poised professionalism of some of Rochester's finest.

On my way home, I thought, I'm lucky to have been brought up in a decent family (and a cop's daughter, to boot), and thankful that I've managed to avoid any trouble with the law during my life. I think now, should that bucket list come 'round Facebook again, I could check off "been arrested" and move on over to skydiving or something else I haven't done. But for now, all I keep thinking is, I hope the UPS driver is reading this.

Scoutmaster Retires, Passes the Torch

By Jean Perry

Rochester Boy Scouts Troop 31 said a fond farewell to its scoutmaster of nine years, Michael Blanchard, and inducted its new scoutmaster, Kevin "KT" Thompson, on April 3 at the Rochester Grange Hall.

Blanchard was the guest of honor for this special occasion, having been invited as a special guest only to be surprised by a crowd that gathered to honor him for his years of service and dedication to the boys of Rochester.

During the ceremony, the scouts and parent scout volunteers presented Blanchard with a number of gifts, some silly, some sentimental, and the Rochester Firemen's Association was on hand to present Blanchard with an American flag that the Fire Department had flown outside the fire station that day.

Some things spoken about Blanchard that night: apparently he doesn't like to wear socks (but he did that night), he always has his bug spray, and, as Thompson put it, the shoes he must fill are enormous ones – socks, or no socks.

The leader reflections on Blanchard's service given by other scout leaders were, at times, emotional as they read poems that reminded them of Blanchard's character and his contribution to scouting.

Blanchard thanked those who were in attendance and turned to his scouts, saying those boys "...Would forever be my boys."

Before cutting the giant cake with an uncanny likeness of Blanchard on top fashioned out of frosting, Thompson took the oath and the torch was passed from Blanchard to Thompson.

"You are relieved," said Thompson to Blanchard. "I am relieved," Blanchard replied.

What NOT to Say to an Autism Parent

(and the uncensored responses parents wish they could say)

By Jean Perry

People really do mean well when they say to me, "You're so ... fill in the blank (amazing, strong, patient, loving)" about me as a mother. True, as a mother of a child with autism and a host of other minor conditions, there are a few other things that I might have to do and experience than a parent of a typically developing child. But I'm no magician. I'm not a super woman. I haven't the patience of a saint. And all mothers 'love' their children.

Isn't that I don't appreciate when someone gives me a compliment. But as any other imperfect person doing this parenting thing, I'm doing what I'm supposed to be doing for my child, right? "Jean, you're an amazing mom." I mean, if I looked at you while you shuttled one boy every night to hockey practice, while taxi-driving your daughter to ballet class, while whisking your toddler to the library for story time and then home to do laundry for three kids and cook and keep them alive, I might be like, "That's insane!" But good for you!

There are some things we parents of an autistic child hear all the time and, admittedly, we sometimes get kind of tired of hearing. Questions we get tired of answering; comments that appear benign to the asker but make us shake our heads, dumbfounded. Feeling hurt.

Wanting to say what's really on our minds.

One of those is, "I don't know how you do it." (Big side eye look here). I might say something like, "Yeah, well, you know ... we do what we've got to do in life..." but it's through a cringing face, a grimacing mouth, because I still have not figured out a polite, yet assertive, way to express, "What, you mean, how could I possibly love my child with a disability? Care for him? Wait one full minute for him to button one button? Change diapers until age six? Why don't I just hand him over to someone else to raise him because it's something too burdensome for a mother to bear?"

I see it, too. I might be a little hypersensitive, overly defensive. Maybe just reading a little too much into what people say. But then someone asks me, "What do you think caused it?" (Eye roll).

Really, I have no idea what caused my son's autism. But don't think for a second that I didn't spend the first three years of this ride wondering what cheese I might have eaten during pregnancy, what medication I might have swallowed, whether I didn't get enough sunlight, or if my "healthy" bacteria versus "unhealthy" bacteria balance was off, and an avalanche of other possible things I might have done to cause my son to be autistic. Frankly, I don't care what 'caused' it anymore.

And then there's the "Oh, he's not that bad." Dude, I said he is autistic, I didn't say he was bad. There isn't anything bad about being autistic. He's different, not bad. Jeez. It's similar to the "Is he getting better?" question. Better? Better than what? Do you mean has he learned any new words, tried any new foods, learned to dress himself yet, stopped driving us all mad with incessant train noises, started acting more ... normal?

As an autism parent, I am not exaggerating when I say that I, like any other autism parent, am constantly on my knees crawling through the autism trenches protecting my child and battling for him to help him find his rightful place in this world. I read everything autism. My social media feeds are crammed with autism-related pages, stories, blogs... My every day is autism information, 24-7. So when someone asks me, "Have you heard ... blah blah blah ... about autism?" Yeah. I heard. Like two years ago. And since then they've discovered that it's not true. Thanks anyway.

Oh, yeah, and just because my son has autism, it doesn't give him the right to get away with a whole bunch of stuff any typical kid wouldn't get away with, either. "Oh, it's OK. He can do that, it's fine." Um, my kid just ran his gross dirty finger across the top of your birthday cake. It is not OK. He needs to learn how to behave, how to act politely. He needs to know that sticking his finger, dirty or clean, across the frosting of someone else's cake is NOT OK. Tell him, "NO! That is not OK!" Say, now you get no cake because I warned you three times to keep your hands off it! Feel free to discipline my child, because, while you're not looking, you know I'm disciplining yours.

But there's one big one that gets me every time. When I tell someone I have a child with autism and his or her response is, "I'm sorry."

You're ... sorry? Why, did you invent autism? Did you sneak into my house, twirl your evil mustache, and cast a spell over my womb to give my child autism? You're sorry, why, because I didn't 'deserve' a child with a disability? Is autism a mistake nature made and you're apologizing on behalf of it? Are you pitying me? Feeling sorry for me? Perhaps it is I who should feel sorry for you for not knowing, not understanding, not seeing the beauty in autism, the beauty in the individual that is my son.

I know. Harsh. Which is why I never say anything rude in response to any of this. Remember, these are uncensored responses. We all have our weak points and when somebody throws certain words at it, it hits you right in the soft spot. This is mine. My son is my soft spot. My sacred, sweet, soft spot.

"You're so ... fill in the blank (amazing, strong, loving)."

No I'm not. But he is. My son is the amazing, strong, and loving one. And if I am any of those things – amazing, strong, and loving – it's because he makes me that way. He makes it so easy to be a good mother to him.

Please, don't let all this inhibit you from saying anything to us at all! Most of the time we autism parents have some of the most developed senses of humor! If you want to ask questions about autism, we will always answer politely and to the best of our ability because we want you to understand what autism is, how it affects lives, and that as individuals there is a place for everyone in this world.

Having just said all that, if you ever want to say something nice to an autism parent, you could try something like, "You have a great kid" or "I can see why you're so proud of him." And if that doesn't work, just ask if we want another refill on that glass of wine. I promise you that question will never get old.

BOS Closes Warrant, Approves ORR Fiscal Study

Marion Board of Selectmen

By Jean Perry

The Marion fiscal year 2018 budget has been finalized, and the $21,950,375 sum now awaits the approval of town meeting members come this May 8.

The Marion Board of Selectmen met with the Finance Committee on April 4 to briefly go over the finalized budget which, said Finance Committee Chairman Alan Minard, is a balanced one.

For this current fiscal year of 2017, said Minard, the financial state of the Town is "in fairly stable condition," with only a few matters like ice and snow over-expenditures to deal with; however, he emphasized, as mandated, the FY18 budget is in fact balanced.

"It's getting harder to do each year," Minard said. With rising costs, unfunded mandates from the State and with Proposition 2½, "That limits the amount of money we can raise and in many instances we get requests from all departments that greatly exceed the amount of money that we actually have."

Heftier increases this year include the ORR budget by $230,000, Minard said. Sippican School is also up $69,000. The police budget is up some as well, with an additional $21,000 for Marion's share of a full-time ORR school resource officer; an $18,000 increase for a new part-time 15-hour-per-week administrative assistant; over $33,000 in overtime pay to cover the shift of an injured officer; and $43,000 for the cost of new officers and planning for staff retirements.

Other things the Town has no control over, Minard said, such as health insurance hikes and pensions, are up $170,000.

The Town was able to save some money in cleaning services, Minard pointed out, and in some cases, such as with the library, consolidating the cleaning services down to one contractor throughout the town buildings saves tens of thousands of dollars.

All in all, said Minard, the FY18 budget is a little over 3% from last year. A "reasonable" budget, he called it.

"Looking to the future, I think we've been very prudent in our planning," said Minard. And with $1.32 million of the $9.4 million in Town OPEB (other post-employment benefits) liability tucked away, Minard said, "This puts us way ahead of most of the towns in the community and one of the reasons we're continuing to maintain our bond rating, so this is smart business."

The selectmen took the Finance Committee's recommendation that the Town contribute $5,000 in collaboration with Mattapoisett and Rochester to fund a fiscal analysis of the Old Rochester Regional School District's spending habits, as first suggested by Mattapoisett Town Administrator Michael Gagne.

"I think that we all kind of suspect that [spending is] a lot looser than it should be, and it's a pretty expensive place for loose finances," said Minard.

An article will be added to the Annual Town Meeting Warrant asking to appropriate the $5,000 towards the study.

The board also closed and approved an Annual Town Meeting Warrant with 51 articles, and a Special Town Meeting Warrant of five articles.

In other matters, Town Administrator Paul Dawson said the Environmental Protection Agency has given the Town some good news, as well as some bad news.

First, Dawson was happy to announce that the EPA, in regards to the impending NPDES (National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System) permit, has agreed to the Town's request to lessen nitrogen output standards from the EPA's prior level of 3 to a level of 4.

"That's good news," said Dawson. "Very good news."

Dawson reported that the EPA has also agreed to allow the Town to extend its wastewater discharge pipe out farther from the salt marsh as a way to bypass phosphorus emissions, as requested by the Town.

The bad news, though, is that the EPA has still not moved on its position that the three wastewater treatment plant sludge lagoons would either have to be fully lined (which they presently are not) or abandoned entirely.

"And that's obviously going to be an extremely significant cost," said Dawson. "The EPA remains rock solid in its [position]."

Also during the meeting, the Town House Building Committee (THBC) expressed a desire to work with proponents of a VFW site feasibility study, proposing now a THBC subcommittee to be comprised of four proponents of the citizen's petition featured on the Town Meeting Warrant requesting its own committee to study the VFW site study, along with three original members of the THBC.

The consensus is that this merger of interests would expedite the feasibility study process and efficiently deliver the funding in order to begin.

THBC Chairman Bob Raymond said, "We're all of the same mind; we really believe that the townspeople deserve a deep dive ... into the feasibility study."

Raymond said the subcommittee would work autonomously from the original THBC, which would have no right to veto or alter any determinations or decisions the subcommittee contrived.

"We want to make sure that this is a clean process," said Raymond. "We may end up disagreeing with them," he added, but at least the public would receive two clearly presented sides. "We think the voters deserve that," Raymond said.

Also on the agenda, the selectmen invited the ORR/Fairhaven Varsity Hockey Team and its coach Eric Labonte to the meeting for praise and accolades on its accomplishment this year.

Chairman Jody Dickerson. "You represented the school well, and especially the town well. You made us very proud of you."

The board also approved Police Chief Lincoln Miller's request to appoint Scott Cowan as a full-time police officer.

The board continued Tabor Academy's request to tie into an existing sewer connection for the construction of an additional 24-student dormitory that would replace an existing dorm, without expanding the population of students at Tabor. The Department of Public Works has recommended the request; however, Dickerson wanted to gather further information before approval.

Dawson announced that the joint meeting of the three Tri-Town boards of selectmen would be April 27 at 6:30 pm in the ORRJHS media room.

Selectmen and Mattapoisett Finance Committee members had asked all town departments, including school, to stay within a 2 percent budgetary increase. After another look, local schools did just that.

White presented the committee with a FY18 budget of $6,917,439 – a 1.99% increase of $135,206 from FY17.

Bowman and Nelson discussed the pressure on the schools to provide special education services to a growing population of students in need, making it necessary to provide smaller classes for kindergarten in the 2017-2018 school year.

"The decisions I've made are student-based," Bowman told the committee members when asked about an increase in staffing. "The needs of children from age three and up is greater than I have ever seen in my career ... we want them in our schools and this is how I plan to treat and service them," she said.

Nelson explained that a teacher holding a BCBA (board certified behavioral analyst) degree will be moved from third grade to kindergarten in an effort to serve the incoming students with special education needs. This move means the FY18 staffing will increase by 0.4 percent.

But Finance Committee Chairman Pat Donoghue still questioned why additional staffing was needed at all when student enrollment continues to decrease.

Bowman said that students coming into the school system with IEPs (individual education plans) needed to be served in the local school versus sending them out of the district that would result in a greater economic impact to Mattapoisett.

Donoghue addressed White, saying, "We've got to do something about the OPEB obligation at ORR so we are looking at schools as a whole ... we've got to get the money from somewhere."

White responded, "There are several ORR issues, OPEB and capital expenses ... the community has been very supportive ... that is, supported in the high rating of K through sixth grade.... We've been able to maintain and sustain our students because of staffing ... people need to understand that ... every action has a reaction."

Town Administrator Michael Gagne said he wanted to get the special education stabilization fund back up to $190,000, setting aside the circuit breaker funds received from the state. Of the OPEB issue he said, "Any money we can save, we are putting into ORR OPEB ... it's always hard to get started, but necessary."

White expressed his frustration, saying, "There is thirty seven million dollars between the three towns for education. I lead four different districts, different buckets ... nobody is having success in putting money aside. All districts are in the same boat."

Donoghue said of Mattapoisett's municipal OPEB trust fund, "When we started putting money aside, our bond rating went up."

White placed some financial blame at the feet of the state, saying, "They are not doing what they said they were going to do [when the school district was established] ... we are getting sixty-eight percent and we should be getting one hundred percent [of regional transportation cost reimbursement]."

The committee thanked White and his team for returning and explaining the revamped budget.

Earlier in the evening, the committee met with members of the Community Preservation Committee when Chairman John DeCosta and member Margaret DeMello presented the committee's FY18 grants.

Three grants were received by the CPC. The Mattapoisett Land Trust is seeking financing to help purchase 53 acres off Mattapoisett Neck Road, the former site of the Buzzards Bay Granite Quarry. The Mattapoisett Historical Society Museum submitted a final request to complete archival preservation activities and cataloging, and Mattapoisett's water department requested financial support to purchase a 164-acre parcel in the Mattapoisett River Valley named the Branch Brook drinking water land protection project.

In their application, the MLT noted that they have partnered with the Buzzards Bay Coalition and have done private fundraising in an effort to secure the purchase price of $600,000. The CPC proposes to allocate $37,500 from their open space category. The MLT plans on building trails on the property that will link it to the state reservation on Brandt Island Road.

The water department is partnering with the Towns of Fairhaven and Marion, along with the Buzzards Bay Coalition, to secure the purchase price of $460,000. Water & Sewer Department Superintendent Henri Renauld noted in his application that passive recreation would be allowed on the property. The CPC proposes $20,000 in funding for the Branch Brook project.

The Mattapoisett Historical Society Museum noted that once completed, the archival catalog would allow people around the globe to virtually access historical collections. CPC proposes $43,112 from their historic preservation category to complete this work.

These grants will be presented by DeCosta at the spring town meeting.

Coalition Presents Revised Site Plan

Marion Planning Board

By Sarah French Storer

The continued public hearing for the proposal by the Buzzards Bay Coalition for the field operations barn slated for the corner of Route 6 and Spring Street was the central discussion at the Marion Planning Board meeting on April 3.

Susan Nilson of CLE Engineering addressed the concerns and questions posed by the Planning Board and its consulting engineer, Ken Motta of Field Engineering.

Nilson began with an overview of the site, specifically the drainage basins, further described as wet swales, which will catch, retain and remove pollutants from stormwater runoff from the site. The wet swales will be planted with species of grasses, sedges, and other wetland plants that will help reduce pollutants in the water before it leaves the site.

"The controlling design factor," as Nilson described it, "is an eight-inch pipe in an existing drainage easement for water leaving the site." This pipe runs southerly across other private property and ultimately connects to a 12-inch pipe.

Nilson demonstrated to the board and concerned abutters who attended the meeting that the 100-year lateral flow from the site will be almost identical to the current flooding conditions. As Chairman Robert Lane noted, "Theoretically, there should be no change to the existing flooding conditions."

Motta agreed, but cautioned the neighbors whose properties are part of the private drainage easement, stating "[The Buzzards Bay Coalition] is not putting any more water into the system, but if any fill on adjacent properties is placed in the easement, the flooding could change."

Board member Jennifer Francis raised the issue of the grass pavers, which will be used at the site to minimize the use of impervious pavement. She remarked, "It looks to me like the drainage will be greatly improved with the grass pavers over the existing conditions on the site."

Nilson also noted that both the Marion Fire and Building Departments signed off on the use of the grass pavers, as long as they are installed according to manufacturer's specifications.

The discussion moved to the question of lighting the site. Board member Will Saltonstall indicated that the applicant and the board should be mindful of the impact of lighting on the surrounding homes, suggesting, "Lighting should be done well and not be a distraction to the neighborhood."

Lane concurred, but pushed for lighting at the back of the building and along the southerly side for safety reasons.

Nilson said the building will have lights in the back and that the site is well lit due to the streetlights on Spring Street.

Although both Nilson and Motta noted that there will be a 1-foot wide gravel filter strip between the grass pavers and the southernmost wet swale, which would provide a visual and auditory warning to drivers, the board considered the area to be a safety risk and requested both lighting and a barrier be placed in this area.

Mark Rasmussen, president of the Buzzards Bay Coalition, agreed with the board's request, asking that the barrier complement current design plans for the site.

"There are low stone walls along the front. Perhaps we could use a row of low bollards to keep people out of the swale?" The board concurred with that.

The discussion turned to the traffic accessing the site. Nilson stated that the site is designed for one-way traffic, specifically as it relates to the boat trailer owned by the Coalition. As demonstrated on the engineered site plan, the turning radius within the site is adequate for the truck and trailer.

Lane proposed the board approve the site plan in principal, and the final draft decision to be completed so that it reflects all that was agreed to this evening.

Rasmussen requested that the public hearing be closed so that the project could move forward, since contractors were hesitant to schedule work without official board approval. Lane declined to close the public hearing, for fear of having an issue with the action taken this evening that would need to be remedied, saying, "This would place the project in a greater bind than this two-week delay."

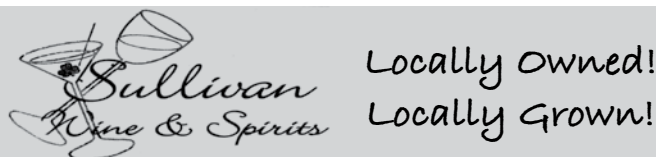

In other business before the board, a request by Dan Crete for a one-year extension of a Site/Special Permit Approval by Saltworks Marine LLC located at 291 Wareham Street was approved without comment.

Francis, who has been developing the Transportation and Circulation Task Force, presented the names of the selected members to the board: Michelle Russell, Norm Hills, John Rockwell, Chris Bryant, Suzannah Davis, Jed Cornock, Kerry Saltonstall, Jonathan Howland, Mike Devoll, Heather Sylvia, and Diane Kelley.

Francis will initially represent the Planning Board on the task force until it is up and running. She remarked on the chosen members, saying, "We have a really excellent group with diverse knowledge and which has lived in town a long time."

Lane will attend the Board of Selectmen's meeting on April 18 to present the Planning Board's request that BOS approval of remote attendance at meetings, which the BOS had approved on a one-year basis, be made permanent.

Due to the Monday holiday, the next meeting of the Marion Planning Board is scheduled for Tuesday, April

Covenant Complexities Flummox Planning Board

Mattapoisett Planning Board

By Marilou Newell

The April 3 meeting of the Mattapoisett Planning Board found the members thumbing through reams of legal documents and yellow-lined work sheets in an effort to understand covenants governing the release of lots and conveyance of subdivisions within the Bay Club.

Coming before the board were John Dawley, president and CEO of Northland Residential Corporation, and David McIntire, owner of "Shagbark," a subdivision within the Bay Club development.

Dawley explained to Planning Board members Gail Carlson, Nathan Ketchell, and Janice Robbins, that he was seeking the board's affirmation of the validity and transferability of the subdivision from McIntire to Northland for the purpose of constructing 32 homes along the existing golf course.

Dawley said that Northland was willing to acquire the properties with any and all existing encumbrances and asked the board "to deliberate that all permits are valid and no objections for the transference" would arise. That's when the conversation hit the proverbial bump in the yet-to-be-constructed road.

Robbins, a new member to the Planning Board who is currently seeking election as a permanent member, admitted that she was confused regarding what the language in an existing covenant meant.

"The road covenant doesn't allow a parceling out of a few lots," she said, noting that roads and drainage infrastructures had yet to be constructed in the subdivision.

There ensued a dissection of legal language and intent on the part of the Town and the property owners, as everyone sitting at the conference table thumbed through documents.

Also present was Attorney Elizabeth Kunz, whose involvement with the Bay Club's various subdivision owners includes her authorship of covenants now in question. She attempted to explain that covenants had been modified as lots were substituted and/or released, and that with each modification, expiration dates extended. But Robbins remained unmoved and confused, stuck on covenant wording that seemed to indicate Shagbark could not be sold until roadways were completed.

Dawley said that the Conservation Commission's Order of Conditions was valid until 2020 and that the roadway covenant didn't expire until 2018; thus, McIntire could sell Shagbark to Northland.

After 45 minutes of discussion that didn't seem to shed sufficient light on the issue of the covenant, Robbins said she needed time to fully understand its complexities. Dawley, by then visibly frustrated, folded his map saying, "I withdraw my request ... I feel like this conversation isn't productive for me."

Kunz then returned to the table with Ted Goudy of Aerie Homes, Waltham, to discuss a different legal issue concerning a home in the Fieldstone development within Bay Club, a development adjacent to Shagbark.

Goudy said that the buyer's attorney had uncovered a glitch in the covenant that muddled the paperwork associated with 106 Fieldstone.

"In 2007, a rearrangement of lots named 106 as subject to the covenant, but the new list didn't include 106," Goudy explained. Now the buyer's attorney was requesting that the paperwork be "cleaned up" before the property could be transferred.

Another long reflection between Kunz, Goudy, and the Planning Board members took place on the history of property transactions and covenants, with Robbins finally saying she could vote to allow the paperwork correction for not only 106 Fieldstone, but also 75, 111, and 118, which are lots with occupied homes.

Robbins returned to the issue of Shagbark, asking Planning Board Administrator Mary Crain to provide a list of lot numbers that are part of the covenant. With a handful of yellow sheets, Crain said she had begun that process, saying it was "complicated."

Also coming before the board was Brian Grady of G.A.F. Engineering regarding Appaloosa Lane for review of roadway paving. Grady said that Tibbetts Engineering had been engaged to conduct coring testing to ensure the road's base and asphalt application had been accurately constructed. He said he would contact Highway Superintendent Barry Denham so he might witness the testing.

Earlier in the evening, the issue of certified test results for the private septic system at Brandt Point Village was reviewed. Crain said that Dale Barrows of the Mattapoisett Board of Health didn't feel qualified to review test results that were dated November 2016. Barrows had indicated to Crain that Field Engineering, the town's engineer providing peer review at the subdivision, should confirm the test report and that his office couldn't pay for the review.

Robbins wondered aloud, "How can we hire an engineer to help the Board of Health?"

The matter was tabled as Carlson, a resident of the subdivision, would have to recuse herself from any proceedings in the matter.

The next meeting of the Mattapoisett Planning Board is scheduled for May 1 at 7:00 pm in the town hall conference room.

Commission, along with members of the Rochester Soil Board and the Town's attorney Blair Bailey, reached a compromise with Decas Cranberry Corporation, represented by Attorney Adam Brodsky and engineer Brian Grady for work related to the construction of a tailwater pond.

This was the culmination of meetings that have taken place since January on the heels of the commission suspending excavation work due to non-compliance of depth.

After months, the commissioners reviewed a list of additional special conditions drafted by Brodsky geared to satisfy concerns related to repairs to the pond and surrounding slopes and the need to shut down the dewatering pumps that residents believe have had a negative impact on Snow's Pond.

Brodsky read the eight-point list to another packed house as the hearing began at the Council on Aging building.

Special conditions penned by Brodsky in agreement with Decas management were: 1) work on the pond would commence utilizing the most recent plan, and (as added by the commissioners) the town's hydrologist, Peter Newton of Bristol Engineering Advisors, would study soils being returned to the pond's bottom to ensure it is the appropriate mixture; 2) complete the repairs and all associated work on the pond as quickly as possible and (another request by the commissioners) that Grady would commission also asked that a spill kit be on site in the event of fuel oil spills and that an emergency containment system be in place for the dewatering pumps until they are removed.

During the course of his presentation, Brodsky said that once all the necessary agreements were in place, returning soils to the pond would take about four or five days.

A study prepared by Newton dated March 20 was part of a handout supplied prior to the meeting. In his report Newton noted, "Restoration of the tailwater pond base elevation to 38 feet is not likely to have any long-term effect, either positive or negative, on the local or regional hydrogeology and water sources...and that, ...should dewatering activities cease it is likely that water levels within the aquifer will recover to ambient conditions within a few months, though not fully until precipitation returns."

Also coming before the commission was Michael Camara of Zero Waste to discuss his request for a permit extension for property located at 50 Cranberry Highway that would allow his company to complete repairs to the waste management facility after a May 2017 fire caused extensive damage to the buildings.

Bob Peterson of Green Seal Environmental said that erosion controls had been put in place but had deteriorated over time, had been replaced and or repaired, and that additional stormwater management systems have been or will shortly be improved.

When asked how long it would take Camara to complete the repairs, he said, "I've invested $12 million in this project," but had faced some financing difficulties. He confirmed that he was finalizing a new financing source and hoped to have a September start date. The commissioners approved a two-year extension.

Also coming before the commission were: David Baillargeon, 698 Walnut Plain Road, with a Request for Determination of Applicability for the construction of a patio, receiving a Negative Determination; Steve Long of Borrego Solar Systems, 453 Rounseville Road, to confirm wetlands borders, was continued until the commissioners visit the site; and Paul Estrella, 79 Bradford Lane, for the construction of an accessory building. Estrella received an Order of Conditions for this Notice of Intent application.

Capital Planning Prioritizes Requests

Mattapoisett Capitol Planning Committee

By Marilou Newell

As the clock ticks down to the Annual Town Meeting, municipal departments including local schools, natural resources, water and sewer, and police and fire are busy tweaking FY18 budgets.

To that end, the town's Capital Planning

Committee has met with department heads who presented their lists of needs for the upcoming fiscal year.

On March 29, CPC members Alan Apperson, Ellen Driscoll, Gerry Johnson, and Robert Ball met with Town Administrator Michael Gagne to discuss the list and rank the top 14 requested items.

Coming in at the top of the list was $40,000 for the construction of enhanced security at Center School.

Gagne said construction should have taken place during the week of February school vacation; however, cost estimates had been much higher than anticipated so the project was not done. Gagne surmised that the plan to complete the work in one week had been too aggressive and most likely would have incurred overtime expenses, pushing the estimate higher than expected. He said the plan now is to do the work once school has closed for the summer.

Number two on the list was $13,000 for new fire hoses. Gagne said this request was the third and final phase needed to bring the fire department hoses up to national safety standards.

Coming in number three was a packaged bundle of small necessities needed by various departments for items such as new office desks and chairs, file cabinets, and a copy machine. He noted that the copy machine used by the building department was nine years old.

Number four was $60,000 for roof repairs to Old Hammondtown School's kitchen. While this sum had been voted on during the FY17 town meeting, during the special town meeting the monies were moved from that line item to school security upgrades, a more pressing issue, Gagne said.

And number five was $10,000 for software upgrades needed by the fire department. Gagne describe the technology as part of the GIS system. He said the department would be able to input data that will make responding to emergencies safer for the firefighters. Gagne said, "They can upload the location of burn permits and hazardous chemicals so that when a call comes in they will know what to expect at the scene."

The remainder of the list was ranked as follows: $25,000 - local school floor tiles; $14,400 - ambulance infusion pump; $40,000 - Phase 3 highway barn updates; $91,000 - two new police cruises; $19,000 - police station window replacement; $70,000 - highway department truck replacement; $14,100 - highway department sander/spreader; $24,000 - COA replacement vehicle; and $13,000 - fire station roof repairs.

The list totals out at $474,050.

Regarding the Water and Sewer Enterprise Fund and its capital needs, Gagne reported that two line items are proposed to be funded via debt service: a water tank replacement on Jane Lane for $1.2 million and Fairhaven sewer line relining for $2.1 million. Other FY18 needs for the department are: $10,000 - GEO graphic system; $80,000 - backhoe/excavator; $30,000 - grinder pump repairs; and $30,000 - water well updates.

On the horizon for FY19 and beyond, the Capital Planning Committee will be asked to consider a new vehicle for natural resources, the replacement of roadway guardrails at various locations, upgrades to the building at the Holy Ghost grounds, sewer catch basin cleaner, and highway yard upgrades.

Members of the CPC are scheduled to meet with the Finance Committee to present their findings on Thursday, April 6, at 6:30 pm in the town hall conference room.

Drama Performance an Instant Hit

ORR Update

By Jo Caynon

The ORRHS Drama Club's production of Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat was like a party on stage every night that spread an infectious good mood throughout the packed auditorium. Filled with vibrant colors, catchy music, and an enthusiastic cast and crew, the show enraptured many members of the Tri-Town community. In fact, it was so popular that Friday night's performance was sold out.

"I think the show went really well each night," said John Roussell, who played Joseph. "Everyone worked really hard and knew their stuff, and I hope that the audience thoroughly enjoyed it."

Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat follows the biblical character Joseph as his brothers sell him into slavery in response to Joseph being favored by their father and speaking of his dreams.

"Joseph lives in Canaan in the time of the Old Testament and has the ability to interpret what dreams show for the future," Roussell added about his character.

While the show opened with a song sung by the local elementary school students who participate in the drama club, the rest of the show was narrated by the talented Sara Achorn and Elle Gendreau. The pair was onstage for nearly the entire two-hour performance, all of which was in song.

"My favorite song was when it cut back to the brothers in a French cafe (in the middle of the desert), and they are experiencing the harsh famine that has fallen over the land," said Roussel. "I like it because the song is so over the top and ridiculous because everyone has a horrible French accent, and some of the notes they sing go on for minutes at a time."

This piece seemed to be a hit with the crowd as well, especially with the improvised section that came not from a member of the cast, but from pit conductor Mike Barnicle. During one of the longer notes, Barnicle interrupts the actors to talk about himself and his infant son, comically forcing the singers to hold out their note for over a minute.

For the majority of those involved in drama, the finale was incredibly sentimental, especially during the last performance on Sunday. Being the spring show, this was the final production for the senior members, and the realization hit home for the entire cast and crew during the closing.

"My favorite has to be the ending song. It made me cry too much on the last show, especially because I felt like I was losing everything I stood for," commented freshman Ryu Huynh-Aoyama, who played Joseph's father Jacob.

As many attest, the group is like "one big family." "It's a beautiful family," Huynh-Aoyama said. "Everyone is really nice and accepting, and it's fun to hang out with all of them," added crewmember Alexandra Nicolosi.

"My favorite part of drama was becoming close with people I was never really close with before," said costumes crew member Ayana Hartley. "You create new bonds and you never want to let them go. I loved that."

It isn't just the members of drama who do not want to see their fellow classmates leave quite yet.

"I was impressed with how professional the play is," said Ariane Uhlin, a member of the audience on one of the nights.

"They're great actors," commented Miyuki Dawson, another audience member. "The costumes are amazing."

"The props, too; it's all really impressive," Uhlin added. "They have great voices; we've been checking if [the students] are seniors or not to see if there's more time to see them in these plays."

While many of the cast members will remain for at least another year, a good portion have had their final curtain call in the ORRHS auditorium, and what a play to go out with.

Tabor Students 'Unplug'

Tabor Academy Update

disconnect in Tabor's first "Unplug Day."

While not all technological devices were off limits, cellphones provide the most common and more luring distraction for students at Tabor and elsewhere. While laptops and similar devices allowed students the ability to get work done and check assignments on the online student portal, the lack of phones took away the temptation to incessantly check social media and text friends.

Although the day was entirely optional, several hundred students participated in the Unplug Day. Participants received some perks for "unplugging," including ice cream sandwiches and a special "phone sleeping bag" for their devices after they completed the day unplugged. The biggest perk, however, was the fact that for every phone turned in for the day, money would be donated to the Special Olympics, an organization with which Tabor has been working closely over the past couple of years.

The idea started with Senior Class Dean Chris Millette, who approached senior Marion Wollach, "Because my pizzazz is incomparable," joked Wollach. Wollach's Senior Project, which she will complete alongside other seniors who are completing projects in the remaining weeks of the school year, is to design a new student lounge at Tabor.

"One of the ideas that I've been toying with is that the student lounge will have a no tech policy," Wollach said.

Students had various reasons for unplugging, but a common trend was seen between the participants. The most people who unplugged came from the freshman class, and each class above them had less and less participants. From Wollach's perspective, the freshmen were more impressionable and more caring than the seniors; however, she noted that the fact that freshmen are more connected to their technology made this trend intriguing. For all those that did unplug, there was an overall positive reaction to putting away the phones.

"I had a bunch of people, mostly teachers, email me saying that they really enjoyed it, that they felt calmer and elated," said Wollach.

The Unplug Day was inspired in part by the National Day of Unplugging, which took place March 3 and 4 of this year. The day was organized by Reboot, a creative Jewish company. The National Day of Unplugging ran from sunset to sunset on these days, and participants also received the phone sleeping bag for their participation.

While this Unplug Day was the first of its kind at Tabor, it will likely not be the last.

"I hope it happens every year, because I think that next year when we do it, there'll be more people, and each year that we do it there'll be more people because it's something you expect, something that people might look forward to," said Wollach.

Girls' Lacrosse Starts off Season Strong

ORR Sports Update

By Alexandra Hulsebosch

Here is a look at the Old Rochester Regional High School sports for this week:

Girls' Lacrosse: The spring sports season has just begun, and very few games have occurred yet for most of Old Rochester's sports teams. However, the Lady Bulldogs have already had two games. Last week, the girls matched up against Bishop Stang and won 20-15. The game began fast and the goals were scored quickly. Junior midfielder Madison Cooney was one of the leading goal scorers with five goals. Along with Cooney, junior attackman Ali Hulsebosch had five goals and four assists. Not far behind was senior captain Emily Hiller with four goals and two assists. The determination did not stop there as Old Rochester continued to score. Sophomore Megan Shay and junior Kat Tracy both had three goals each. The half ended with a drastic lead by the Bulldogs. However, Bishop Stang made a comeback in the second half to close the gap to a five-goal difference. The Bulldogs held strong. In their second game, the girls' lacrosse team faced Barnstable and won 17-9. Again, Cooney was the leading goal scorer with five goals. Hulsebosch was not far off with four goals. Hiller and Taylor Lee each had two goals. Tracy, Shay, Ava Ciffolillo, and Maddie Demanche all had one goal each. The Bulldogs played the game with the focus on winning, and

Girls' Basketball: Out of the 37 athletes that were nominated for the 2017 Dave Cowens Achievement Award, it was Old Rochester's senior captain Sophia Church who came home with the trophy. She was the first female recipient for ORR since 1998. Church finished her Old Rochester basketball career with 831 points and led the team in assists.

Girls' and Boys' Swimming: As one of the most talented swimmers in the area, Marc Bourgeois competed at Old Rochester and for the Seacoast Swimming Association out of Seekonk. Dear Editor:

I just want to set the story straight on my lot. The main intent of having a driveway added to my buildable lot on Indian Cove Road is to prepare it for future development and construction of a house. The other issues you so nicely highlighted are important as well. Also, bear in mind that the previous owners of the property had full permission from the Conservation Commission of Marion to have a driveway constructed.

There are many issues involved here. The ConCom insists on focusing on the less important issue of getting access to be able to drive my trailered boat in. Of course they make it sound quite foolish. Again, having access to my separate, buildable, fully-taxed lot is extremely important to me as I plan on going forward with the driveway after it is approved. I direct you to please read about the family in Falmouth, MA that recently sued their lovely town for nigh a million dollars, as their ConCom withheld permission to develop their lot.

In fact, Marion is about to finally have a presentation by town counsel on avoidance of overstepping their legal bounds when making decisions. Often members of boards and commissions throughout this fine county make decisions incorrectly, expanding their self-appointed roles to make decisions that they have no right to make. I understand that the ConCom tries to maintain wetlands, which are of extreme importance to our environment. I personally see that certain people in this very town get different considerations, depending on who they are. Some folks can fill in wetlands. Some can cut down trees in the wetlands. Some can build homes or even garages in or on the border of wetlands. Some can't. Shouldn't all citizens be treated equally and with respect? Why would any town allow one person to be on so many committees, basically controlling a large percentage of what goes on and doesn't in one small town.

2 Main Street, Acushnet 508-995-6272

Dear Editor:

As an ORR School Committee member this year, I have learned first-hand how passionate our townspeople are about the quality education at our junior and senior high schools. At the recent FY2018 Budget Public Hearing, many people spoke out about the positive impact teachers and programs are having, or have had, on their lives. We also talked about the nuts and bolts of school funding at this meeting and how it is a mix of state funds, local funds, and self-generated revenue, such as the fee the high school must charge students to participate in athletics ($225 per sport, with family caps).

Within that discussion we touched on the broken promise on the part of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to fund regional transportation. Participants asked for more information on this topic and the school district's administration has pulled together key points and posted them on the District website (<http://www.oldrochester.org/pages/ORR>).

Essentially, when the Tri-Towns decided to regionalize, the State's promise of reimbursing regional districts for the cost of transportation beyond 1.5 miles was a key incentive to participate. However, the State didn't follow through and now only reimburses about 68-70% of the cost. This lack of full funding means that the ORR operating budget must cover over $200,000 in transportation costs. If Beacon Hill does not alter this funding for next year, we will have to pay even more since transportation costs are going up and the State's transportation reimbursement fund will be spread over more regionalized districts.

I think we can all agree that when the State does live up to their end of the bargain puts tremendous pressure on our local junior and senior high schools' budgets. Imagine the technology upgrades, the social-emotional supports, and the facility improvements we could make with those funds! We would be able to bring our stated five-year plans to fruition.

What can be done? Currently the Massachusetts Association of Regional Schools (MARS) is pushing hard to increase the rate of transportation reimbursement and they need your help! Take just a few minutes to reach out to your state officials and the governor and let them know that they need to follow through on the promise to reimburse regional district transportation. Like every School Committee member has done, let your representatives know that making up this shortfall puts tremendous pressure on local budgets. Tell them that education is important to you and a key driver for the future of Massachusetts! You can find contact information for your state officials at the League of Women Voters of Massachusetts' website, <https://lwvma.org/>.

Thank you for your continued support of the ORR Junior and Senior High Schools.

*Sincerely,
Heather Burke, Marion*

Art of Egyptian Belly Dance

The Marion Art Center is pleased to announce its upcoming workshop, The Art of Egyptian Belly Dance, an introductory class to be held on Saturday, April 29 from 7:00 to 9:00 pm, with instructor Ellie Higgins. Known formally as Raqs Sharqi, this ancient art form for women is fun, exciting and suitable for all body types, ages and fitness levels. Participants will enjoy proper warm-up, stationary basic moves, then a mini show-and-tell about cane dance, zills (finger cymbals), simple veils & use of props, even learn a short combination! Instructor Ellie Higgins has practiced and performed Egyptian dance for 15 years. She is an AFAA-Certified Group Fitness Instructor who has taught daily Fusion Dance-Fit classes since 2008. Cost for the MAC's two-hour workshop is $20 for MAC members and $25 for non-members. Participants

VIRTUAL DEMENTIA TOUR®

The Virtual Dementia Tour® is an individual experience through simulated dementia created to better understand the physical and mental challenges of those with dementia.

After experiencing this sensory training, you will have a greater understanding of the realities of what living with dementia is like. This unique, interactive program has been shown to improve communication and care. Learning to create a positive environment for those with dementia can only come from attempting to walk in their shoes.

OBITUARIES

James Francis Carr, 86, of Marion, Massachusetts and Lakeland, Florida passed away peacefully on Wednesday March 22, 2017. He was the husband of Yucel O. Carr and the son of the late James J. and Yvonne (Bergeron) Carr. He was born in Dorchester, Massachusetts and grew up in Springfield. After serving as a Sergeant in the U.S. Army during the Korean War, Jim attended Boston University where he received his Bachelor's degree in Communication and Journalism. After graduating from Boston University, he moved to Portsmouth, New Hampshire where he met Yucel. They married in 1958. While in Portsmouth, he worked as a DJ for a local radio station before landing a job at the Portsmouth Herald. In 1965 they moved to Marion, Massachusetts. He was employed by the New Bedford Standard-Times as a writer and editor for many years until his retirement. He was a communicant of St. Rita's Church and received the Marian Medal: Celebrating Our Humble Servants for his service to the church. He loved the theater and was active in the Portsmouth Players Theater group and the Marion Art Center. He was an avid Boston sports fan and golfer. He coached and umpired youth baseball for several years.

He and his wife enjoyed cruising and traveled to many exotic places.

Survivors include his wife Yucel; three children, Karen DellaCioppa and her husband James of Mattapoisett, Laurie Green and her husband Timothy of Middleboro, and James Carr and his wife Jean of Tewksbury; a sister, Kathryn D'Amato and her husband Neil of Virginia; six grandchildren, Jennifer Ripley, Timothy Green, Andrew Green, Brian Green, Jeffrey Carr, and Emily DellaCioppa; and several nieces and nephews.

His Funeral was held on Monday April 3, 2017 from the Saunders-Dwyer Mattapoisett Home for Funerals, 50 County Rd., Route 6, Mattapoisett, followed by his Funeral Mass at St. Anthony's Church, Mattapoisett. Burial was in the Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne. Visiting hours were held on Sunday April 2. In lieu of flowers, remembrances may be made to Cornerstone Hospice Foundation, 2445 Lane Park Rd., Tavares, FL 32778 (donate@cshospice.org) or the Alzheimer's Association, 480 Pleasant St., Watertown, MA 02472 (alz.org). Joann Totten, 51, of Walpole, MA passed away peacefully on March 25, at her home surrounded by her family following a courageous battle with cancer. Joann was the beloved husband of Glenn Totten and devoted mother to daughters Mei and Lia Totten. Joann is survived by her parents Bruce and Linda Klappholz of Mattapoisett, MA, her brother

Douglas Klappholz, his wife Catherine and their children Jakub and Chloe of Vancouver, WA and her mother-in-law Patricia Peterson of Dennisport, MA and many aunts, uncles, cousins and close friends.

Born in Far Rockaway, NY, Joann graduated from Maloney High School (Meriden CT) 1983 and Eastern Connecticut State University (Windham, CT) 1987. She began her career as a Radiation Therapist at Brigham and Women's Dana Farber Cancer Institute, a field she entered to honor the memory of her grandmother. Joann was dedicated and passionate about her profession and would spend the next 18 years caring for others. She took tremendous pride in the care of her patients and was honored to work with a dedicated team of professionals that shared her passion for giving. Ironically, it would be these same professionals who would come to her aid to help her face her own battle against this disease.

Joann will always be remembered for her courage and dignity, the inspiration she portrayed, and her appreciation for all the caring people who made her journey home a lesson in love and humanity. We will miss her beautiful smile and that special something that she shared with those who knew her.

A Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated Friday March 30th at Blessed Sacrament Church, Walpole. Interment at Knollwood Memorial Park, Canton, MA. In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the "Totten Strong Fund" to help with future educational expenses for her daughter's Mei and Lia. Checks can be made payable to Totten Strong Fund and sent to Rockland Federal Credit Union, 564 Main Street Walpole, MA 02081. ### Brazilian and Latin Musical Bouquet

Delightful Brazilian and Latin musical gems performed by one of Brazil's great pianists, Maria José Carrasqueira, and Berklee professor, flutist Wendy Rolfe, will be presented in concert at the First Congregational Church of Marion on Saturday, April 22 at 4:00 pm.

Their program will include waltzes by Ernesto Nazareth, favorites by Tom Jobim and Heitor Villa-Lobos, and other selections evocative of Brazil and Latin America. Carrasqueira and Rolfe have performed together in Brazil, Peru, Ecuador, and the United States, and recorded the critically acclaimed CD "Images of Brazil" together.

Renowned as performer and professor, Brazilian pianist Maria José Carrasqueira pursues her career as a soloist, chamber musician, lecturer, and recitalist in Europe, Brazil, the United States, and Latin America. She is the recipient of three of the most important prizes for classical musicians in Brazil: The Carlos Gomes Award for Best Instrumental Soloist; the São Paulo Critics of Art Association Award for Best Recitalist of the Year; and the prestigious Sharp Music Award-for Best Classical CD Production. In 2005, her CD with works by Ernesto Nazareth was released by the French label Solstice in Europe and by YB in Brazil, receiving four stars from the French magazines Le Monde de La Musique and Diapason. She has been professor of piano at the Faculdade Santa Marcelina in São Paulo and the University of Campinas.

Wendy Rolfe is a leading performer on historical citations including the Bronze Star.

Along with his brother Jack, he started the Yankee Box Company in the late 50's and thrived as CFO until his retirement in the early 90's. Along with Jack and later Bart Kennedy, he grew the company significantly throughout the years and was very proud of his many employees and sales-people.

Upon retirement he volunteered with many local organizations including the Mattapoisett Library Building Committee, the Council on Aging and the Mattapoisett Land Trust. A long time skier of many mountains but especially Sugarloaf, Pat's Peak and Mount Snow, where on his 80th birthday he insisted on taking his last run with his sons and grandson. He also loved sailing, hiking and in his later years his daily walk through Mattapoisett Village and out to Neds Point and was known to many around town as "the guy with the ski poles". He was also an avid gardener, tomato specialist and took specific pride in trimming the perfect hedge which was a focal point of the property. Since childhood he had a tremendous wanderlust and extensively traveled New England, the United States and the world with his wife, his sons and later in life taking many solo walkabouts throughout the western and Alaskan National Parks which he was a great supporter and fan of.

He was the perfect example of "walking to the beat of a different drummer" and was known to many as "Fashionable Bob" for his eclectic fashion statements and was widely thought to be one of the early pioneers of today's Hipster Movement. He was kind and thoughtful and had many friends throughout Mattapoisett and beyond and will be missed but never forgotten.

His remains will be interred at the Massachusetts National Cemetery in Bourne MA with honors on Friday June 16 and the Walter family will be hosting a memorial gathering for all who knew him at their home in Mattapoisett on Saturday June 17 at 1 pm. In lieu of flowers, donations may be sent in his name to the Friends of Mattapoisett Library at P. O. Box 1146, Mattapoisett, MA 02739. Grace M. (Jupin) McGee, 94 of Mattapoisett died April 2, 2017 at Sippican Health Care Center.

She was the wife of the late Thomas A. McGee.

Born in New Bedford, the daughter of the late Michael and Barbara (Basick) Jupin, she lived in New Bedford before moving to Mattapoisett in 1990.

Survivors include her son, Douglas McGee and his wife Nancy of Fairhaven; a daughter-in-law, Joanne McGee of Hyannis; 2 grandchildren, Ryan McGee and his wife Nancy and Kevin McGee; and 2 great-grandchildren.

She was the mother of the late Patrick McGee.

Her private Funeral Service was held Thursday, April 6th in the Saunders-Dwyer Mattapoisett Home For Funerals, 50 County Rd. (Rt. 6) Mattapoisett followed by burial in St. Mary's Cemetery. For online guestbook, please visit www.saundersdwyer.com.

MOVIE REVIEW

King of Pain

By Rob Gonsalves
www.robsmovievault.com

Silence. Starring Andrew Garfield and Liam Neeson. Directed by Martin Scorsese. Running time: 161 minutes. MPAA rating: R. Now on home video.

Silence is very likely the most Catholic movie Martin Scorsese has ever made, which makes it very Catholic indeed — mega-Catholic, über-Catholic. It's a real high mass of a film, done with high craft in the highest seriousness. I'm seriously divided on it, but ultimately I have to lean in its favor. I feel protective of it, as if it were a sketch or a mandala. Pain and guilt radiate from every frame, alongside incongruous natural beauty. I'm not sure if it's a work of art or a tract of instruction, and certainly it couldn't be less interested in reflecting the concerns of the day or satisfying the commercial cravings of the day. Like Scorsese's The Last Temptation of Christ, it's timeless and placeless; its true milieu is inside Scorsese's head.

The climate in Last Temptation was red and dusty; the one in Silence, 17th-century Japan, feels cold and wet, shot by master cinematographer Rodrigo Prieto in infinite gradations of blue and gray, yet never feeling desaturated. The mood is frightened but determined spirituality in the face of violent oppression. Christianity in this land is punishable by torture and death, unless the accused voluntarily steps on an image of Christ, thus signaling their renunciation of God, their apostasy. (We hear the word "apostatize" in this film about as often as we hear a certain other word in Scorsese's gangster films.)

Two Portuguese Jesuit priests, Rodrigues (Andrew Garfield) and Garrupe (Adam Driver), volunteer to sneak into Japan to look for their former mentor Father Ferreira (Liam Neeson), who is said to have apostatized. They find a blue, rainy place haunted by terrified Japanese Christians and the stone-faced samurai who hunt them. The problem with Scorsese's alter egos in his movies about faith is that they, for him, are filled out with his own guilt and devotion. The rest of us may perceive these heroes as somewhat hollow, undefined. Andrew Garfield does what he can, but Rodrigues is drawn as a bit too much of a noble sufferer, only intermittently aware that his steadfast refusal to apostatize might have more to do with his pride than with any genuine love of God.

Fortunately, Scorsese acknowledges this, and throws some of our identification to a few of the Japanese characters. There's Kichijiro (Yōsuke Kubozuka), a Judas stand-in who's also the mad fool of the piece, always moving between sacrifice and betrayal; or Mokichi (Shinya Tsukamoto, bad-boy director of Tetsuo the Iron Man and many others), a devout old Christian; or especially Inquisitor Inoue (Issey Ogata, whose voice is one of the most amazing purrs of self-satisfied evil I've ever heard in a movie). Given that the priests are so devoted to their faith they sometimes seem completely out of touch with reality, and given that Scorsese lets the Japanese have humor and complexity — humanity — I don't think Silence can be waved off as white-saviorism. Scorsese sees the problem with all-or-nothing thinking on either side.

Technically, Silence is a Michelin three-star restaurant. Emotionally it's impacted, uncertain; Scorsese never met a doubt he didn't love to chew over. Sometimes it seems his real subject all along has been faith darkening into doubt and then brightening back towards faith, and on and on eternally. Paradise, says a woman in the film, is a place with no suffering and no work (and no taxes, she adds), but what kind of drama is that? As David Byrne said, heaven is a place where nothing happens. For Scorsese, it's all about the struggle, which for him is the tension between religious asceticism and the visceral, sensual pleasure he derives from cinema — watching it and making it. His movies about faith tend to end more or less happily because the end of a film means that a film has been made. The famous cliché about Scorsese is that the movie theater is his church and vice versa. Silence is an interiorized work surrounded by, almost mocked by, flesh-punishing yet ravishingly gorgeous nature. In that respect it's as Catholic as the blood flowing through Scorsese's veins and his emulsion.

and modern flutes and is well-known as a musical ambassador throughout the Western Hemisphere and overseas. She has lectured, taught, and performed in Latin America as a Fulbright Program Senior Specialist in American Music and also toured the United States with a Solo Recitalist Grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, presenting her unique "A Journey Through Music History with the Flute." Ms. Rolfe performs, records, and tours with the Handel and Haydn Society and Boston Baroque, and holds the piccolo chair with the Cape Symphony Orchestra. Toronto's Tafelmusik Baroque Orchestra's award-winning recordings of Beethoven symphonies recently concluded with his Ninth Symphony featuring Ms. Rolfe on piccolo. She is also heard on the soundtracks of the Disney / Touchstone film Casanova and the Ken Burns PBS special on Thomas Jefferson.

Tickets for the concert at $15 for adults and $10 for students are available at The Bookstall on Front Street in Marion and at the door. ### A Poetic Confluence

The public is invited to a free lecture by Peter Bergman, Director of the Berkshire Historical Society at Herman Melville's farm Arrowhead in Pittsfield, MA. Bergman, Director of Communications & Community Relations will speak about the poetry of two uniquely American poets/authors at the Mattapoisett Free Public Library on Sunday, April 23, from 2:00 - 3:00 pm. Melville felt the pull and influence of the Berkshires from childhood on and his years at Arrowhead, his farm in Pittsfield, were among his most prolific. Edna St. Vincent Millay's time at Steepletop, in nearby Austerlitz, NY, were strong and active years for her as well. A close examination points up some mystical connections between them: both led remarkably similar lives with extraordinarily similar careers. Learn about two of New England's literary greats. A reception, sponsored by Friends of the Library, will follow the presentation.

The library is located at 7 Barstow Street and is handicapped accessible.

Donna Lange solo sailed around the world in 2007, and she made the journey again in 2015 non-stop, spending nine months in the Southern Ocean. What is particularly intriguing is that she did this without GPS, relying on dead reckoning and at times solely on celestial navigation for this trip. She made all required repairs herself, and sustained herself – mind, body and spirit – for nine months. Along the way, she performed marine research, tested emergency equipment, wrote songs and books, and through the Internet, shared her experiences worldwide.

SALOME'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Be careful about doing someone a favor when you don't know the full story behind the request. Don't rely on someone's unsubstantiated assurances. Insist on all the facts before you act.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) That workplace problem still needs your attention before you finally can close the book on it. Meanwhile, a long-anticipated reunion gets closer to becoming a happy reality.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might be demanding more from others than they can give. Best advice: Have a long and frank talk to determine what the facts are. Tensions should abate as the week winds down.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Aspects are favorable throughout this week for making contacts that could be important to your career plans. Meanwhile, an old friend offers the advice you're seeking.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) It's time to stop licking your wounds from past mistakes. Get up and get going toward your future. Loyal friends will be there to help the Lion get back into rip-roaring shape.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Take time out to go over what's expected of you before you begin your new project. Otherwise, you run the risk of pushing yourself harder than you need to.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) An unusual request could put you in an awkward position. Best advice: Deal with it immediately. The longer you delay, the more difficult it will be to get out of it.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You should feel recharged and ready for whatever your workaday world holds for you. The same positive energy spills over into your personal relationships.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A prospect might be less than it appears to be. Like the Archer in your sign, you always aim for the truth. And this is no time to settle for less than full disclosure.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Start doing some serious thinking about a career move that could entail more than just changing job sites. Some lifestyle changes also might be involved.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) With tensions easing at the workplace, a more positive environment once again encourages the free flow of ideas so typical of the always-innovative Aquarian.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Show some of that usually hidden steel-strong Piscean backbone, and stand up for yourself if you hope to make a case for that promotion you know you deserve.

BORN THIS WEEK: You enjoy doing new things and staying ahead of the crowd. You would make a fine sports coach or military leader.

'17 (Marion) and Zihao (Leo) Zhang, '17 (China) received acceptances for their submissions to the National K-12 Ceramic Exhibition. The exhibition was held in Portland, OR, from March 22-25. Acceptance is notable as only about 10% of submissions are selected for the juried exhibition.

According to the National Council on Education for the Ceramic Arts (NCECA) website, "the National K-12 Ceramic Exhibition is the premier juried ceramic competition for pre-college students in the United States. Designed to showcase the best student ceramic work made in the country, the exhibition takes place in a different city each year in conjunction with the NCECA conference. ceramic event in the U.S. annually, gathering professionals from universities, colleges, museums, art galleries, and the ceramic arts world to a host city to view exhibitions, demonstrations, talks, and other ceramic events. For that week, the host city is the world capital of ceramics."

At the end of the exhibition, the juror, noted potter and educator Julia Galloway, recognized Lucy Saltonstall's work awarding her an Artistic Achievement Award (one of three awarded). Both students are to be congratulated on the achievement of being selected for exhibition.

Last year, three Tabor seniors exhibiting – Phillip Eisner, Thomas Kelly and Nicole McLaughlin – were recognized for their submissions with named awards that included cash, special subscriptions or scholarships. This is the second year Tabor has submitted entries to this national ceramic art competition.

Welcome To Mattapoisett Visitor Guide

The Mattapoisett Historical Commission is pleased to announce their photography selection for the soon-to-be-published Welcome To Mattapoisett visitor guide.

Congratulations go to Christina Musser of Mattapoisett who submitted several outstanding photographs including two that will be used for front and back outside covers. Several other local photographers will see their pictures on interior pages.

Gateway Youth Hockey

Squirts' Championship Game: The Gateway Gladiator Squirts closed out the 2016/17 season with a dramatic win over WHK in the Championship game of the Yankee Conference on Saturday. The Gladiators came ready to avenge their opening round loss to WHK, but after a slow start and a few critical mistakes, they found themselves down 4-0 with less than a minute to play in the second period. Brayden Cannon looked like he would get the Gladiators on the scoreboard with a late period breakaway, only to be stopped by the goaltender. On the ensuing defensive zone face-off, Tommy Clavell took the puck up the right side and cut across to the net and neatly tucked one in under the goalie with seven seconds left in the second. Still down three as the third period began, the resilient Gladiators dug deep and mounted a comeback starting with the first face-off of the third period. Ben Hebbel won the face off back to Mike Brown who passed to Cannon on the wing. Cannon moved the puck to a breaking Hebbel who sped to the net and netted the Gladiators' second goal in 80 seconds. Continuing the comeback on the next face, Liz Kilpatrick pulled the puck to Bree Killion who fed Brayden Hathon who launched a wrist shot from the blue line then found the back of the net. WHK, with momentum swinging, took a timeout that allowed the Gladiators to catch their breath as well. The Gladiators kept the attack on with Cannon taking a pass from Hebbel and flipping the puck into the net above the reach of the goalie. With game tied, the fans chanting and WHK dazed, Hebbel took the ensuing face-off straight to the net to give the Gladiators a 5-4 lead. Not slowing down, Hebbel took the next face-off and found Cannon open across the crease, and Cannon again launched a shot out of reach of the goalie and extended the Gladiators' lead to 6-4. All in all, the Gladiators scored six unanswered goals in just under ten minutes of play with a final score of 6-5. In net, with a standout performance was Ryan Killion, who stopped 26 of 31 shots for the win.

Pee Wees' Championship Game: Gateway Gladiator Pee Wees had an incredible season losing a single game all year. On Sunday, the Yankee conference championship game pitted the Gateway Gladiator Pee Wee team versus the Coastal Stars. In the first period, Nathan Ribeiro put Gateway on the board with assists from Connor Macleod and Thomas Leger with Joe Urnek and Brady Kidney contributing some great plays. In the second period, Ribeiro scored his second of the game with assists from Sean Pollock and Leger. Lucy Murphy played aggressive to the puck giving her teammates a chance to take the puck to the net. Ribeiro soon completed the hat trick with an assist from Ty Rebeiro. Lucas Demoranville came in strong with Jacob Hebbel for some unbeatable defense. In the final frame, Matthew Stone was strong, making plays to get the puck where it needed to be and helping Ribeiro secure his fourth goal of the game with an assist from Rebeiro. The Stars added pressure, but Rebeiro was able to get through and score Gateway's fifth goal of the game with an assist from Pollock. Matthew Paling had multiple shots the whole game, but he couldn't reach the netting until late in the third when he put away an unassisted goal leaving the final score 6-0. Gateway's Goalie Ryker King played an unbelievable game, making multiple difficult saves to keep the Stars from scoring and securing the shutout for the final game of the season.

Gateway Youth Hockey Gladiators

Gateway Youth Hockey Gladiators – the most reasonably-priced youth hockey league in southeastern Massachusetts – is looking to fill a few roster holes for the upcoming season, from the younger divisions like Mite (7-8), Squirt (9-10) and Pee Wee (11-12) to Bantam (13-14) and Middle School. If you are interested in joining a winning team – both the Squirts and the Pee Wee Gladiators won the championships this year – please reach out to Quirino doCanto at qdocanto@msn.com.

NEASC membership requires that a school undergo a self-study and formal evaluation at least once every ten years. The steering committee's responsibilities will include coordinating a schedule of events for the school's self-study, collecting reports from various subcommittees, and making necessary preparations for the evaluation committee's visit.

According to Principal Devoll, "The self-study will include the completion of the comprehensive assessment of teaching and learning and the support of teaching and learning. The focus of the Accreditation visit will be to determine the extent to which our programs and services carry out the school's core values and beliefs about student learning and align with the Committee on

Animal Advice

Jay Gould, DVM

I'm confused about rabies vaccines for my dog and cat. I hear about 1,2 and 3 year vaccines. Whats the deal?

Talk to your vet about the specifics of their wellness programs, but the Massachusetts law requires that dogs and cats be vaccinated for rabies by 6 months of age. A booster shot should follow in 9 to 12 months. The second shot is good for three years assuming that the vaccine is licensed for 3 years. If the second shot is even a day late over the 12 month period the vaccine is automatically only legal for 1 year. So don't delay after getting a reminder card saying your pet is overdue for shots.

The same law applies to cats but some people prefer 1 year rabies shot in cats as a 3 year vaccines contain a substance that can cause cancer at the vaccination site in a very small percentage of cats. Again, talk to your vet about your preferences.
